seem that Albert was a cipher, a young man taken for granted, and not truly cared for, but was he? Gish attributed Albert with several good qualities – moral, industrious, and healthy. He was also described as stout. Was his physical appearance unpleasing? If so, was he teased or rejected due to his size?

5. Why was his body buried in Lockport Cemetery near none of his kin? Why was he not buried in the Friends Cemetery? Did the Quakers disown his remains because he committed suicide? Perhaps Albert shunned the ways of the Quakers. There does not seem to be any evidence of strong concern from Benjamin Borton who was Albert's guardian as of 12 Nov 1873 and again on 8 Sept 1876, almost two years before Albert's death. Why was Albert working for Gish, not a Quaker, and not Borton, a Quaker?
6. What personal property did he have and who claimed it? Obviously he must have had something – clothes, money, letters, photographs, and books? We know he must have been able to read and write. There was no probate for Albert, so he must not have owned land or anything valuable.
7. And what about the rope? No one saw him with this, but Gish definitely identified it as being his. Why didn't he notice it was missing before, during the days when Albert went missing, if it was so distinctive as being his? The newspaper stated there were no signs of foul play, but could there have been? The manner in which his death supposedly occurred could have a more sinister explanation, but no one chose to follow up on that, even though a jury was empanelled. Were the people of Brady Twp more concerned with deposing of his remains rather than discovering the true events of his death? It was easier to declare this a suicide, and perhaps it was.

Obituary.

William Smith was born in Fulton county, Ohio, August 6, 1844; died March 27, 1900. Aged 55 years, 7 months and 21 days. He moved with his parents to Williams county in 1848. He enlisted at the age of 18 in the 38th Ohio Volunteers and remained until the close of the war. He leaves a daughter, two sons, a sister and two brothers.

Funeral services were held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Barnhart. Rev. D. C. Hollinger officiating.

Obituary.

DIED.—Mrs. Edith Spangler, nee Hannum, at her late residence in Northwest township, Williams county, Ohio, on Sept. 28, 1903—aged 41 years, 6 months and 19 days.

Mrs. Spangler was the last and only child of her widowed mother, and was born in Northwest township. On December 14, 1882, she was united in marriage with W. O. Spangler, and remained a faithful, devoted companion until death separated them.

Mrs. Spangler possessed a genial, sunshining nature, which made her a favorite among her acquaintances. The deceased was an active member of Northwest Grange, No. 413, and her splendid service in the local organization was highly appreciated. She and her husband contributed much of their time and service toward the now popular Grange fair.

Her sickness covered a period of eight weeks, during which time she was a great sufferer. She frequently expressed doubt of her recovery, and seemed to have a premonition that the end of her earthly career was near at hand, but she was submissive to the divine will of her Heavenly Father, and resigned all to Him.

The funeral services took place from the Northwest U. B. church on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Rev. G. W. Long officiated at the services, which were very largely attended by friends, neighbors and members of the Grange.

The floral offerings were beautifully significant. Interment was made in Rodgers cemetery. May the husband and mother receive help from God.

DIED.

Addie Myers was born in Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22, 1858. She was married to Chas. Beatty, June 8, 1890. She was the mother of two little girls, and was 41 years and 8 days old when she died. The funeral took place from the house, Aug. 10, 1900, conducted by C. M. Eberly.

Myrtie Adele McGuire, daughter of M. C. McGuire of Edgerton, died August 31, 1900, aged nearly twenty-three years. Myrtie McGuire was a young woman of more than ordinary ability and acquirements. She was a graduate from the Edgerton school, and the Normal college at Angolia, and at her death was a member of the County Board of Teachers' Examiners, and a teacher of recognized ability. In the social circle she was a great favorite and her friendships were only limited to her acquaintances. Her untimely death is greatly regretted by the entire community in which she lived.

Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee—
We miss thee everywhere.

Cora Brannan departed this life Saturday, May 16, at 4:30 a. m.—aged 38 years and 20 days.

Cora will be greatly missed in Toledo, where she had a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and was beloved by all who knew her.

The floral offerings were beautiful beyond description, showing the high esteem in which she was held.

She had been a great sufferer for the past year, being confined to her bed for the last three months, being the constant care of her devoted mother, whose future hopes were centered in her only daughter, only to be shattered by God's hand.

Besides a mother and father she leaves two brothers; Chester W. Brannan, residing in Toledo, Harmon E. Brannan of Freedom, Ills., both of whom were here to witness the last sad rights.

Dont know him while here, and in Indiana.

There was nothing the matter with his eyes up to the time he went in the army.

No sir, eye disease or affection is not hereditary in our family, and I dont know of any member of the family having weak or sore eyes but the soldier.

The fever and eye affection is all I remember being the matter with brother since the war, as I dont know of him having lung or heart ailment, or army disease.

I would say that brother has been one half disabled for work by reason of his eye ailment since he got his discharge from the army.

I have no interest in the claim, and my answers are correctly recorded to your questions.

Dr. Thomas Kent started his practice at Lafayette (Pulaski) in 1839, moving to Bryan in 1841. (Goodspeed history of Wms. Co.)

Last week while hunting up material for the business directory, published elsewhere in this paper, we encountered a number of "old settlers" from whom we learned the following particulars of the early settlement of this county.

The first actual settler in what is now known as Williams County was James Guthrie, who "squatted" near Bean Creek in 1827.[1] He put up a cabin and cleared a small patch of land, but gave little attention to agricultural pursuits, spending most of his time trapping along Bean and Beaver creeks, or hunting in the adjacent forests.

In 1830, Hollingshead and Lindenberger "squatted" on Bean Creek near Guthrie's claim and cleared up the land. Daniel Colgan afterwards "entered the tract" settled on by Hollingshead, bought his claim, and occupied the farm until his death, which occurred some four years ago.

During the summer or fall of 1833, Joseph Bates and John Young moved their families to the northeastern part of the county, and were followed by Eli Oliver, Turner Thompson, Jabez Jones and John Miller, each of whom entered lands and moved onto them.

About Oct. 1, 1833, Judge John Perkins and his two sons, Isaac and Garrett, his son-in-law John Plummer, and John Moss, George Lantz, Henry Jones and a man named Hood came with their families from Brunersburg to near where the village of Pulaski now stands. The settlement was named Lafayette, but for some reason was subsequently changed to Pulaski. We are informed that the site for the new settlement was chosen by Isaac Perkins and John Plummer, who trapped along the banks of Bean and Beaver creeks as early as 1820.

Judge John Perkins, who seems to have been the leading spirit among the pioneers, was one of the earliest settlers of the Maumee Valley, having removed from Ross County to Prairie du Masque on the Maumee River in 1816 or 1817 and from there to Brunersburg in 1819. He built the first gristmill at Brunersburg and was one of the first three associate judges appointed for Williams County, a position he held for many years. He built the first grist and sawmills in what is now Williams County.[2]

About the 20th of Nov., 1833, William Wyatt moved from Delaware County and settled near the Perkinses on lands he had previously "entered." Mr. Wyatt informs us that on the night when the "stars fell" (13th of Nov.), he was encamped between the two Powell creeks, and that he reached his destination on the 20th.

In 1839 the number of old settlers in this vicinity had materially increased. Dr. Thomas Kent, who had moved to Lafayette a year or two before, favors us with the following list of voters at the election in 1839: John Perkins, Garrett Perkins, Isaac Perkins, Ezra Wilson, Reuben H. Gilson, George B. Jones, Isaac Swagger, William Killpatrick, Jas. McKinley, Henry Johnson, James Alexander, Garrett T. Hitt, David Pickett, Alonzo Rawson, Robert Thompson, George Everett, Thomas Kent, Benjamin Kent, Henry Cassett, John Beaver, George Lantz, Daniel Wyatt, — Davidson.

About that time an effort was made to change the location of the county seat from Fort Defiance to a more central point in

The settlement was named Lafayette, but for some reason was subsequently changed to Pulaski. We are informed that the site for the new settlement was chosen by Isaac Perkins and John Plummer, who trapped along the banks of Bean and Beaver creeks as early as 1820.

Judge John Perkins, who seems to have been the leading spirit among the pioneers, was one of the earliest settlers of the Maumee Valley, having removed from Ross County to Prairie du Masque on the Maumee River in 1816 or 1817 and from there to Brunersburg in 1819. He built the first gristmill at Brunersburg and was one of the first three associate judges appointed for Williams County, a position he held for many years. He built the first grist and sawmills in what is now Williams County.[2]

About the 20th of Nov., 1833, William Wyatt moved from Delaware County and settled near the Perkinses on lands he had previously "entered." Mr. Wyatt informs us that on the night when the "stars fell" (13th of Nov.), he was encamped between the two Powell creeks, and that he reached his destination on the 20th.

In 1839 the number of old settlers in this vicinity had materially increased. Dr. Thomas Kent, who had moved to Lafayette a year or two before, favors us with the following list of voters at the election in 1839: John Perkins, Garrett Perkins, Isaac Perkins, Ezra Wilson, Reuben H. Gilson, George B. Jones, Isaac Swagger, [redacted] Jas. McKinley, Henry Johnson, James Alexander, Garrett T. Hitt, David Pickett, Alonzo Rawson, Robert Thompson, George Everett, [redacted] Benjamin Kent, Henry Cassett, John Beaver, George Lantz, Daniel Wyatt, — Davidson.

Dr. Thomas Kent started his practice at Lafayette (Pulaski) in 1839, moving to Bryan in 1841. (Goodspeed history of Wms. Co.)

Last week while hunting up material for the business directory, published elsewhere in this paper, we encountered a number of "old settlers" from whom we learned the following particulars of the early settlement of this county.

The first actual settler in what is now known as Williams County was James Guthrie, who "squatted" near Bean Creek in 1827.[1] He put up a cabin and cleared a small patch of land, but gave little attention to agricultural pursuits, spending most of his time trapping along Bean and Beaver creeks, or hunting in the adjacent forests.

In 1830, Hollingshead and Lindenberger "squatted" on Bean Creek near Guthrie's claim and cleared up the land. Daniel Colgan afterwards "entered the tract" settled on by Hollingshead, bought his claim, and occupied the farm until his death, which occurred some four years ago.

During the summer or fall of 1833, Joseph Bates and John Young moved their families to the northeastern part of the county, and were followed by Eli Oliver, Turner Thompson, Jabez Jones and John Miller, each of whom entered lands and moved onto them.

About Oct. 1, 1833, Judge John Perkins and his two sons, Isaac and Garrett, his son-in-law John Plummer, and John Moss, George Lantz, Henry Jones and a man named Hood came with their families from Brunersburg to near where the village of Pulaski now stands. The settlement was named Lafayette, but for some reason was subsequently changed to Pulaski. We are informed that the site for the new settlement was chosen by Isaac Perkins and John Plummer, who trapped along the banks of Bean and Beaver creeks as early as 1820.

In 1839 the number of old settlers in this vicinity had materially increased. Dr. Thomas Kent, who had moved to Lafayette a year or two before, favors us with the following list of voters at the election in 1839: John Perkins, Garrett Perkins, Isaac Perkins, Ezra Wilson, Reuben H. Gilson, George B. Jones, Isaac Swagger, William Killpatrick, Jas. McKinley, Henry Johnson, James Alexander, Garrett T. Hitt, David Pickett, Alonzo Rawson, Robert Thompson, George Everett, Thomas Kent, Benjamin Kent, Henry Cassett, John Beaver, George Lantz, Daniel Wyatt, — Davidson.

About that time an effort was made to change the location of the county seat from Fort Defiance to a more central point in the county. Several localities aspired to the honor, among them the villages of Pulaski and [Williams] Center; also the Perkins farm on Beaver Creek, Bowman's farm two miles southwest of Bryan, and the "Walnut Tree Site," one and a half miles west.

The present site of Bryan was a howling wilderness, but its owner, John A. Bryan, then Auditor of State, coveted the honors and was mainly instrumental in securing a change.

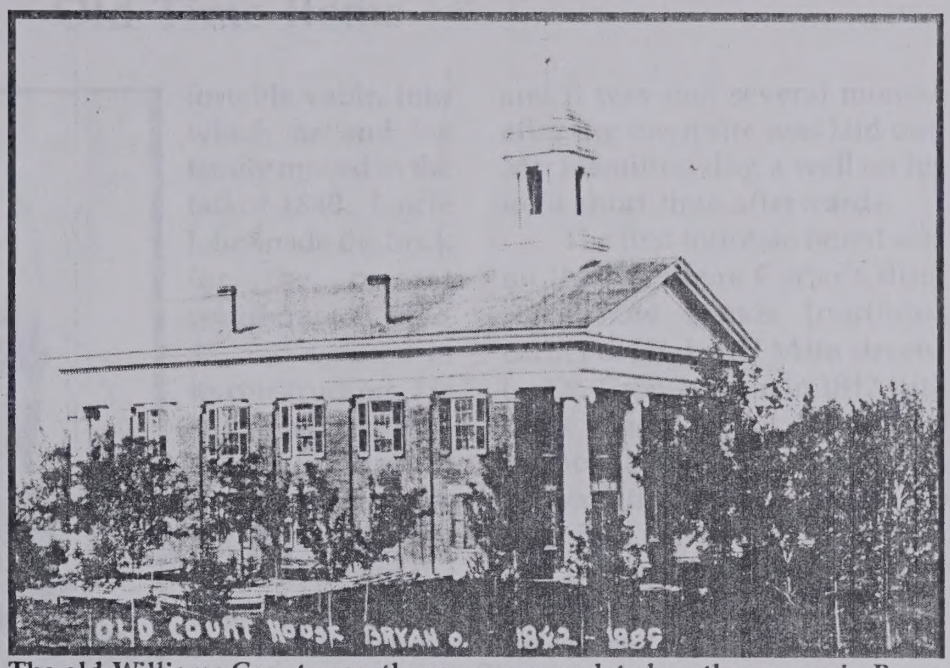
In the year 1839-40 the Legislature enacted a law to change the county seat and appointed Hons. Joseph McCutchen of Crawford [County], [Joseph] Burns of Coshocton, and [James] Culberson of Perry, commissioners to select a site.

In the spring of 1840 the commissioners arrived, and after a passing glance at the several sites, unanimously decided in favor of Bryan's tract. It is quietly intimated that the location was agreed upon before the commissioners left Columbus, but it was necessary to personally visit the localities before announcing their determination.

But probably the strongest inducement for its location on the site finally selected was the fact that Mr. Bryan had offered a donation of several thousand dollars toward the erection of the county buildings.

At that time the plat was covered with a dense forest, not a stick had been cut for any purpose, and the "lay of the land" was considered low and somewhat marshy.

The nearest dwelling in a northerly direction was on a clearing owned by a man named Ingle. John Davis now owns and occupies the farm.



The old Williams County courthouse was completed on the square in Bryan in 1845-46 and was torn down in 1888. (Bryan Library Photographic Archives)

East, Garrett Perkins' was the nearest opening, just where the state road crosses Beaver Creek, now occupied by Mr. Clodfelter.

South, seven miles away, was Craigo's tavern, a small round log house, where the proprietor entertained man and beast in real old-fashioned, backwoods style.

West nearly two miles, William Sheridan Sr. worked a small farm and carried on blacksmithing in all its various branches. Mr. Sheridan still lives on the farm cleared up by him over 30 years ago.

During the summer of 1840 and after the location of the county seat, the streets and lots were run off by Miller Arrowsmith, Esq., county surveyor, and the embryo city named "Bryan" after its distinguished projector and proprietor.

As soon as the survey was completed, Volney Crocker (then living on lands now owned by Hon. Edward Foster southeast of town), stuck up a basswood log shanty on the lot since for many years occupied by Reasoner's tavern,[3] which he lodged in while engaged in clearing the courthouse square. The shanty could hardly be dignified with the title of cabin, for it was neither "chinked nor daubed," and was only occupied for a short time.

Before the completion of Mr. Crocker's contract, Daniel Wyatt came on from Beaver Creek, cleared a lot and built a round log cabin about where the residence of Samuel White now is [south side of the courthouse square]. The cabin was "chinked and daubed," had a puncheon floor and a real chimney made of sticks run up on the outside of one end of the cabin. It was unquestionably the first dwelling house erected in Bryan, and was occupied by Mr. Wyatt and family for a long time. Jacob Over, who had visited the site before the town commenced, returned a few days after the completion of the cabin and boarded with Mr. Wyatt during the following winter. Mr. Over still resides in Bryan and is a hale, hearty man.

Before the raising of Mr. Wyatt's cabin, Uncle John Kaufman commenced an improvement on the [southeast] corner of Main and Bryan streets, where Dr. Graser's residence now stands, and soon had up a comfortable cabin into which he and his family moved in the fall of 1840. Uncle John made the brick for the present courthouse in 1842-43, and assisted in its construction. He still resides in Bryan and finds much pleasure in recounting incidents in the early history of the country.

The third dwelling was erected by a man named Hamilton, on the lot now owned by J.J. Snyder on Lynn Street. During the fall and winter, several other cabins were raised and occupied, and the county seat began to assume shape.

Up to the spring of 1841, the citizens had been using surface water which they obtained from holes or reservoirs dug in the ground. Mr. Wyatt, having received liberal encouragement, dug a well on his lot just in the rear of his cabin. Fountains or flowing wells were unthought of, and he was proceeding in the usual manner to dig a curb well.

Having reached the hardpan late in the evening, he determined to rest from his labors. Returning to work in the morning, he found that the water had burst the hardpan, filled the well and was running out at the top. This was the first well in Bryan, and it was dug several months after the town site was laid out. Mr. Hamilton dug a well on his lot a short time afterwards.

The first fountain bored was on the lot where Carter's drug store now stands [northeast corner of High and Main streets] by Dr. Thomas Kent in 1842 with tools made expressly for the purpose by William Sheridan Sr. It was the first fountain, so called, in town.

During the fall and winter of 1840 to 1841 a log courthouse was raised on the lot now occupied by I.R. Whitmore on North Main Street[4] and in the spring of 1841, the county records were removed from Defiance. The county offices were in a log building on the south side of the square. The county officers did not come with the records, but entrusted the business to the care of the deputies. The officers and deputies were: Ed Phelps, clerk; Levi Colby, deputy; W.A. Brown, auditor; S.R. Brown, deputy; E. Lloyd, treasurer; J.L. Martin, deputy; C.L. Noble, recorder; W.A. Stevens, deputy; [William K.] Daggett, sheriff; John Drake, deputy. Mr. Stevens transacted nearly all the county business during the first year or two, except during court week and taxpaying time.

The first term of Williams County Court of Common Pleas was begun in the log courthouse on April 19, 1841. Present were Hons. Emory D. Potter, president judge, Jonas Colby and William D. Haymaker, associates. The grand jurors were: Horace Hilton, John Bowdle, James Partee, Jacob Kries, Zachariah Hart, William Travis, Francis Loughhead, Daniel Wyatt, George W. Durbin, Jacob Dillman, Isaiah Ackley, Amos Stoddard, Seth Stinson, Fred Meizer and Jacob G. Weldin. Jacob Dillman was appointed foreman. Our fellow townsman George W. Myers was one of the petit jurors at the same term. It is safe to say that with such men "to the fore," justice between man and man was fairly and impartially administered.

The first political convention of which we have any account was of the Democratic persuasion, and held at the house of Col. J.B. Kimmel at Williams Center in the fall prior to the two dollars a day and hard cider year 1840. Colonel Kimmel presided, and tradition says the proceedings were marked with the utmost harmony and good feeling. The harmony and good feeling, however, was not of a lasting nature, and did not prevail to any great extent a few years later.

The first tavern opened in Bryan was on the east side of the square in 1841 by Thomas Shorthill. Mr. Shorthill was appointed postmaster the same year, but the business of the office was transacted by his brother, James Shorthill.

The first store was started, also on the east side, by our fellow townsman William Yates, Esq. He continued in business at the old stand until the winter of 1855-56, when his building burned. The business amounted to about $2,500 the first year. Twenty-nine years later $2 million will hardly cover the transactions of one year.

In 1841, E.H. Leland opened a law office. He was soon followed by George Higgings. In 1842 Leland and Higgings were candidates before the Democratic county convention for the nomination for prosecuting attorney. Leland was successful and was elected, of course, the county then being reliably Democratic. Higgings soon afterwards moved to a more congenial clime.

A.J. Tressler, Esq., now cashier of the First National Bank of Bryan, was the first school teacher. He taught the young idea how to shoot in 1842 in a log schoolhouse near where Brown's tailor shop now stands on the south side of the square.

The following notice might have appeared in the Bryan papers of 1842, had there been any papers printed here at that date: "Married—In Bryan, Ohio—1842, by J.B. Kimmel, Esq., Mr. A.J. Tressler and Miss Olivia Kent, both of this place." It was the first marriage consummated in the village of Bryan.

The new courthouse, begun in 1842, was completed in 1845 and was at that time the best structure for the purpose in northwestern Ohio.

The first newspaper started here was the Northwestern by [Thomas] Blaker. It was Democratic in politics and issued weekly from a small frame building on North Main Street. It was sickly from its birth and lived about a year.

From 1840 to 1856 the growth of the village was slow, very slow, but the completion of the Air Line Railroad from Toledo to Chicago gave impetus to immigration and trade, and now we have one of the most flourishing business towns backed by the most reliably productive regions in Ohio. It has now reached a position where it cannot stop, if it would. The country surrounding it is settled by a class of industrious, enterprising people who drive things to win, and they will rapidly force Bryan into a position of wealth and influence second to that of no other inland county seat in the state. Bryan Democrat Jan. 5, 1871

[1] Recent research shows Guthrie did not arrive until 1831. Samuel Holton Jr. is believed to have settled in St. Joseph Township in 1827. See the January and February 1995 issues of the Northwest Historian for further information.

[2] Samuel Holton Jr. erected Williams County's first mill on Fish Creek north of Edgerton. This mill was probably in operation by 1829. The Pulaski mill was not built until 1834-35.

[3] Reasoner's tavern was located on the east side of Main Street in the area of the parking lot between Subway and Lester's Diner.

[4] The log courthouse stood southeast of the intersection of Main and Mulberry streets, in the area of KFC restaurant.

The mails between West Unity, Pulaski and Bryan have been discontinued by stage and will go by the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw hereafter. West Unity Chief, Jan. 18, 1888

Subject: Eureka!

Hi! Sounds as if you have been your busy self. Not too much going on around here except the usual work. But it has been cold. I could hardly do anything today. Went to the pee-wee game to watch Caleb play last night and about froze. Cecilia went too, then we came home and got on the chat room and was on for an hour and 45 minutes. It was Joanie, Krista and I and , of course, Cecilia typed on my name. Janet came on and off twice. Don't know yet what her problem was, she never typed a message. The girls say she isn't too computer-literate yet. Neither am I but I do seem to get along and learn more all the time. Cecilia is really getting interested since she has fooled around a little with this one. She uses one at work all the time, but it is not for pleasure.

Oh, yes, the eureka. I finally found a Charlotte Kent in the 1850 Census. Pulaski Twp., father Benjamin Kent from VA, age 38, a plasterer. Mother Ancy (I think) 36, VA. Children born in OH: Charlotte 17, Nathaniel 15, Angeline 16, Alvina 12m Francis 7. Of course, this isn't really proof. There is no Wms. Co. marriage cert., but maybe Def. Co. when I get there. Also will look at Benjamin's will (if there is one) when I get time. I spent some time looking at the Williams and Defiance Co. Censuses. The Stockman from NM who is the editor of the newsletter says his current project is to find all with the name in the 1850 Censuses. He couldn't find our George nor his son Isaac. I thought George would be in Center TTwp., but he wasn't there. Maybe he lived at his wife's former home and it was in a different twp. I will have to do a little studying on that one.

Guess I'd better get busy at something else now. I'm getting a packet ready to send to NM with some family info in it. This guy seems really interested. Then I don't think there will be anything further for him. or from him. You take care. Will be hearing from you, I expect. Mary Etta

Roena:

Was sure sorry we couldn't get together when you were here. And I'm sorry I didn't have time to talk. You probably thought I was really rude but I didn't know what else to do.

Seems all I get done is running my mother or mother-in-law to a doctor's appointment. Oh well, I hope my kids will do the same for me someday.

And I never got home until after 5:00 o'clock that day. Mom always has odd things she needs to do while she has me, she says - grocery store, etc.

I've been so busy working on the book for Montpelier for next year but do take time to copy things of interest.

I came across this of Michael Fickle that may not be anything but will send it along.

I didn't have time to check the Fickle file but thought this Michael might be the one that was the half brother to our Fickles or at least Phebe's son. I can't remember but here it is anyway.

Gotta go.

Jacquelyn
